Specifically, claims 1, 6, 11 and 16 are directed to a rule engine capable of applying rules against an object and debugging interface capable of detecting events and an event handler-providing event to the rule engine. Therefore, the claimed invention is improved by the support of object model API for unforeseen rule which to be developed later and the programming of the objects be revisited update for existing hooks for new hooks those are accounted for the new rules to achieve efficiency and debugging.
